

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The radiation sensitization potential of a candidate compound can be screened by determine its ability to generate one or more reactive oxygen species under appropriate conditions. Compounds determined to have radiation sensitization potential are employed in methods for treating atheroma, tumors and other neoplastic tissue as well as other conditions that typically responsive to radiation sensitization.

10